

Shakespeare's ENGLAND

Heritage

Shakespeare's England is home to some of the most historically significant places in Britain and is the perfect place for heritage enthusiasts to discover the fascinating and unique history of the region.

Experience the very best of England's rich and varied heritage at the huge variety of attractions in the area. Discover over a 1000 year's of history at Kenilworth Castle and Warwick Castle, explore Ragley Hall and Stratford Armouries or experience life as William Shakespeare himself would have lived it at Shakespeare's Birthplace and historic houses.

Kenilworth Castle

Kenilworth

Kenilworth is one of England's most magnificent castles and is one of the largest historic attractions in the West Midlands. Once standing at the heart of a 1,600-ha (4,000-acre) hunting ground, and surrounded by a vast man-made lake, it represented a rich prize to the generations of royal and almost-royal great men who owned and embellished it: among them Geoffrey de Clinton, John of Gaunt, Henry V, and Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester.

The ruins are best known as the home of Robert Dudley, the great love of Queen Elizabeth I. Dudley created an ornate palace here to impress his Queen in 1575.

Shakespeare's Birthplace

Stratford-upon-Avon

A trip to Shakespeare's England would not be complete without a visit to Shakespeare's Birthplace or one of the other 4 historic houses in the area, Anne Hathaway's Cottage and Gardens, Nash's House and New Place, Mary Arden's Farm and Hall's Croft.

Become part of the Shakespeare story at Shakespeare's Birthplace which is the perfect introduction to William Shakespeare's Works, Life and Times. Fall in love with the childhood home of Shakespeare's wife at the most romantic Shakespeare house, Anne Hathaway's Cottage. Discover the sights, sounds and smells of an authentic Tudor farm at Mary Arden's Farm and explore the elegant Jacobean home of Shakespeare's daughter Susanna Shakespeare and her husband Dr John Hall at Hall's Croft. Finally conclude your journey at the site of Shakespeare's final home in Stratford-upon-Avon, Nash's House and New Place.

The five houses offer an incredible memorable experience for visitors as costumed interpreters bring history to life with tales of what life was like in Shakespeare's time.

Warwickshire Museum

Warwick

Pay a visit to Warwickshire Museum and learn all about the rich culturally history of the region.

The collections cover archaeology, social history, geology and natural history. The Museum currently displays and interprets its collections at three sites which provide a gateway to our services. The iconic seventeenth century Market Hall Museum, in Warwick's Market Place, houses displays and exhibitions relating to our collections of archaeology, geology and natural history specimens.

Also in Warwick, St John's House is a Jacobean mansion housing reconstructions of a Victorian kitchen, parlour and classroom. It includes displays of costume and musical instruments, and a discovery room for the under 5s. The town of Alcester's Roman past is displayed and interpreted at Roman Alcester, which opened in 2005.

Saxon Sanctuary

Wootton Wawen

St Peter's Wootton Wawen, near Stratford-upon-Avon, is one of the oldest structures in England's Midlands.

Warwickshire's oldest church is a storybook in stone. Its tower saw in the last millennium and the drama of English history has swept through it ever since. Every age has left its own story, so a visit to St Peter's Church is a real adventure.

Group and educational visits can be booked by prior arrangement. This is a real hidden gem and one for visitors to Shakespeare's England to discover for themselves.

Lord Leycester Hospital

Warwick

A hidden jewel in the crown of Warwick historic buildings, The Lord Leycester Hospital is not now, and has never been a medical establishment. The word hospital is used in its ancient sense meaning "a charitable institution for the housing and maintenance of the needy, infirm or aged".

The Hospital is an historic group of timber-framed buildings dating mainly from the late 14th Century clustered round the Norman gateway into Warwick with its 12th Century Chantry Chapel above it. Hidden behind the ancient buildings is the tiny but delightful Master's Garden.

A completely unique organisation, after a visit to the Lord Leycester Hospital you will have experienced a true piece of British heritage.
